She found me when I'd lost my way. Just waiting for my judgement day.

Just weeping for the wasted years. Just drowning in a sea of tears.

But she made me smile once more. Never felt this good before ... 2 bars

I was a dead man losing control. A dead man losing a soul.

A dead man who's been destroyed.

A dead man walking the void. A dead man walking the void

She took me by the heart and hand. I knew that she could understand.

She told me that she would be mine. She threw me a love lifeline.

And she made me smile once more. Never felt this good before ... 2 bars

My heart is hers alone. I love her to the blood and bone.

She's artless and true and wise. But I get lost in her clear green eyes.

And she made me smile once more. Never felt this good before ... 2 bars

Now the dead man walks once more. Far stronger than he was before.

Safe in the love he's found. He's walking now on solid ground

I'll love her 'til the seas run dry and the stars fall down from the sky.

'til time has worn away. Until the judgement day.

And she made me smile once more. Never felt this good before ... 2 bars

Now the dead man has come alive. The dead man has been revived.

The dead man has been to hell.

But the dead man is alive and well. The dead man is alive and well.

"She" knows who she is! Thank you, my lovely Gill, for causing the corpse to preambulate.

Without you, I'd be a dead man walking.
